“Welcome to the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh and to the Faculty of Pre-Hospital Care Conference 2023.”

We are particularly pleased to be back after a two-year break, the conference is one of the most important events in our calendar and the sell-out number of delegates seems to bear testament to that!

A key strength of our Faculty is in its multi-professional reach. We have an impressive programme with a broad scope, hopefully with something for everyone, and I am particularly pleased to see Non-Health Care Professionals and event medicine represented. The conference meets the Faculty's objectives of contributing to high quality pre-hospital education and research and integrating the efforts of all participants in pre-hospital care. The programme includes an outstanding number of posters and I encourage you all to view them, and to visit our exhibitor stands. I am grateful to Professor David Lockey (Gibson Chair), Gordon Ingram (Conference Lead), and all those who have brought the programme together and supported the conference.

We have a wealth of speakers sharing their work and experiences, some of which feeds into our consensus statements and exams. It is an opportunity to share the work of members and others, and crucially, the conference allows us to come together to discuss, facilitate collaboration and benefit from the human contact.

We also appreciate the opportunity to recognise excellence in presenting the FPHC Medals and Honorary Fellowships at the conference drinks reception.

Dr Pam Hardy,
FPHC Chair

This Diploma is aimed at all those involved in the planning for, or organisation of, a major incident response above that of your own area of professional expertise.

The emphasis is on the organisational and regulatory framework of major incident management rather than clinical aspects, although these do form part of the syllabus where such knowledge is essential to the provision of an appropriate response.
